The N. C. Daily News translates the following memorial from the Pelsing Gazette: -A memorial from the Governor of Chê-kiang. Upon the failure of the "Fu-k'ang" and other Banks opened by Hu Konnz-jang, an expectant Taotai of Kiang-si, in the winter of 1383, as the sums in which he was in default were very large. the process of the law should have been put in motion and he should have been promptly denounced to the Throne, his button taken from him and measures taken for the recovery of the

This would have been the regular course of procedure, but as Hu Kuang-jung was credited with owning some scores of pawn-shape representing capital to no small amount, and it was quite possible that in his extremity he might realise this property or hide it away, it was privately arranged between the Financial Commissioner and the Memorialist that the for mar should go to Hu Kuang-jung's house and coax him into supplying the Memorialist with a full statement of the Government monies that he had received and of the capital represented by his various

This list was furnished, and as upon scruting by the Memorialist it was found to be enough to meet Hu's fofficial) liabilities, officers were sent to superintend the business of the parent shops in order to prevent the managers concenting or removing any of their contents. The money realised by the redemption of pledges from day to day was remitted to the central likin bureau at Hangehow, and applied to the liquidation of government claims in the order of their argency. Thus, in two years time, the whole of these claims were paid off in full, and the Memorialist the 30th of December, 1335, he received a despatch from the Board of Revenue informing him that, at the Board's suggestion. His Majesty had the authorities and sold, the proceeds being taken as a set off against his liabilities. Secret orders were at once given to the Pre-Jen-ho and Ch'ien-t'ang districts to enter into possession of all the property they could find, and the Central likin Bureau was directed to furnish a list of the official monies due from Hu Kuangjung, and of the amounts paid by him in satisfaction thereof. This list was at once sent in. from which it appeared that, with the exception of the sum of Tis. 70,000, representing a portion of the Kansu and Chili (?) foreigh loans which had been kept for business purposes and which had not been recovered, the balance of all public monies due by Hu Kuang jung-for-which the Chêkiang Government was proceeding against him had been paid in full, a fact of which the duly informed. The Prefect of Hang-chow subsequently reported that, previous to the receipt of the instructions above referred to, Hu Kuang-jung's family had reported to him the decease of that individual upon the 6th of December, 1835, but on the arrival of the orders above referred to he, the prefect, and the Magistrate went in person to the house to put seals on the property. They found the coffin deposited in the central room, and made a careful inspection of the dwelling rooms of the house, which was reuted from one Chu but they found nothing therein but tables, chairs, boxes, emphoards and other wooden articles of furniture; there was no money or valuables of any kind. Hu Nai-chün and the other sous of the deceased on being interrogated declared that all the family property had been sold to meet their father's obligations, and there was nothing more left to seize, but they declared their readiness to pay the balance of his debts within a given time. These debts, they said amounted altogether to Tis. 1.592.000 odd, which had been liquidated with the capital and proceeds of the sale of 26 pawn shops owned by their father. Of the Tis. 106,000 which had been kept back for "outside use," Tls. 35,000 had been paid off and they would pay down Tis. 20,000, leaving a balance of Tis. 50,000 which they agreed to clear off by the end

As regarded the debts to the gentry and people, which had been ordered to be confiscated to public uses had already been paid, and the balance of the claims against the Bank had been liquidated by payment theroof at a discount, and, as there were

Though the assertion of the Hongkong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Co.'s Russian newspaper that Mr. Winston has obtained a "twenty years' contract to develop all the riches of Persia" is generally regarded asan exaggeration, it is by no means impossible | China and Manila Steamship Company, Limited that he may have obtained valuable railroad concession. What lends some colour to the statements made in the Novoe Vremya is the fact that Mr. Winston went to Teheran by way of St. Petersburg. Before leaving Washington he remarked that he carried "instructions" with him from the State Department, as well as letters of introduction to influential people in St. Petersburg. What those "instructions" were has never been disclosed. It is not denied, however, by the State Depart ment that Mr. Winston was ordered to proceed to his post by way of the Russian capital. If Mr. Winston secured concessions from the Shah, it was done no doubt with the aid, indirectly, at least, of the State Department; and the question naturally arises whether it is part of Mr. Bayard's duty to obtain profitable contracts for American Ministers abroad.
